1. The customs value of imported goods shall be the value of transaction with them, that is, the price actually paid or payable for these goods upon their sale for export to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union and supplemented in accordance with Article 67 of this Code, provided that the following conditions are met:

1) there are no restrictions on the rights of the buyer to use and dispose the goods, except for the restrictions that:

limit the geographic region in which the goods can be resold;

substantially do not affect the value of goods;

are established by acts of the bodies of the Eurasian Economic Union or by the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan;

2) the sale of goods or their price does not depend on any conditions or obligations whose effect on the price of goods cannot be quantified;

3) no part of the income or proceeds from the subsequent sale, disposal or use of the goods by the buyer is directly or indirectly due to the seller, except in cases where additional accruals may be made in accordance with Article 67 of this Code;

4) the buyer and the seller are not interrelated persons or the buyer and seller are interrelated persons in such a way that the value of transaction with imported goods is acceptable for customs purposes in accordance with paragraph 4 of this article.

2. In the event that at least one of the conditions specified in paragraph 1 of this article is not met, the price actually paid or payable is not acceptable for determining the customs value of imported goods and the method of the value of transaction with imported goods (method 1) shall not apply.

3. The price actually paid or payable for imported goods shall be the total amount of all payments for these goods carried out or to be performed by the buyer directly to the seller or other person in favor of the seller. At that, payments can be made directly or indirectly in any form not prohibited by the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan. In the event that the declared goods are part of a larger number of the same goods acquired under a single transaction, the price actually paid or payable for the declared goods shall be determined in the same proportion (proportion) in which the quantity of the declared goods and the total number of purchased goods are correlated.

4. The fact of the relationship between the seller and the buyer should not in itself constitute grounds for recognizing the value of transaction as unacceptable for determining the customs value of imported goods. In this case, the circumstances accompanying the sale must be analyzed. In this case, the customs body shall conduct customs control, including an analysis of the circumstances accompanying the sale. The declarant shall have the right to prove the absence of the influence of the relationship between the seller and the buyer on the price actually paid or payable in one of the following ways:

1) submission of additional documents and information (including those requested additionally by the customs authority), characterizing (reflecting) the circumstances accompanying the sale. In order to determine the effect of the relationship between the seller and the buyer on the price actually paid or payable, the customs authority, when analyzing the circumstances accompanying the sale, considers all the terms of transaction, including the manner in which the buyer and seller organize their commercial relations, and how the considered price was established. If, as a result of the analysis, the customs authority has established that the buyer and seller, being interrelated persons, mutually sell and buy goods on the same terms, including at comparable prices (that is, at the prices of the same level) as if they were not interrelated persons, this fact shall be the proof that the relationship between the seller and the buyer did not affect the price actually paid or payable;

2) submission of documents and information confirming that the value of transaction with the imported goods is close to one of the following verification values taking place in the same or corresponding period of time when the goods are imported into the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union:

the value of transaction with identical or homogenous goods for the sale of such goods to buyers who are not interrelated to the seller, for export to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union;

the customs value of identical or homogenous goods, determined in accordance with Article 70 of this Code;

7. When the customs authority compares the verification values indicated in subparagraph 2) of paragraph 5 of this article, with the value of transaction with imported goods, the declarant's information shall be taken into account on differences in sales levels, in the number of goods, in additional charges specified in Article 67 of this Code, as well as the differences in costs that are usually borne by the seller in sales, when the seller and the buyer are not the interrelated persons, compared to the costs incurred by the seller in the course of the sales, when the buyer and seller are the interrelated persons.

8. Verification values specified in subparagraph 2) of paragraph 5 of this article shall be used at the initiative of the declarant and solely for comparison purposes in accordance with paragraph 7 of this article and cannot be used as a basis for determining the customs value of imported goods.

9. The price actually paid or payable for imported goods shall refer to goods transported across the customs border of the Eurasian Economic Union, in connection with which the dividends paid by the buyer to the seller and other payments in case they are not related to the imported goods shall not be included in the customs value of imported goods.

10. When information carriers containing software intended for information processing equipment are imported into the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, the customs value is determined in accordance with the procedure defined by the decision of the Eurasian Economic Commission.

When importing other media (paper, electronic or other) containing information into the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, the customs value should not include the cost of information, provided that it is isolated from the price actually paid or payable and documented.

In the event that such sales are not identified, the value of transaction with identical goods sold at a different commercial level and (or) in other quantities shall be used, with an appropriate amendment taking into account differences in the commercial level of sales and (or) in the number of goods.

The specified amendment shall be made on the basis of information documenting the validity and accuracy of the adjustment, regardless of whether it leads to an increase or decrease in the value of transaction with identical goods.

In the absence of such information, the method of the value of transaction with identical goods (method 2) shall not be used to determine the customs value of the goods being valued.

2. When determining the customs value of imported goods in accordance with this article, if necessary, an adjustment shall be made to the value of transaction with identical goods in order to account for a significant difference in the expenses in relation to the being valued and identical goods specified in subparagraphs 4), 5) and 6) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code, conditioned by the differences in the distances to which they are transported (moved), and by the types of transport, transporting (moving) the goods.

When determining the customs value of imported goods in accordance with this article, the value of transaction with homogenous goods, sold at the same commercial level and substantially in the same quantity as the goods being valued, shall be used.

In the event that such sales are not identified, the value of transaction with homogenous goods sold at a different commercial level and (or) in other quantities, shall be used, with an appropriate amendment taking into account differences in the commercial level of sales and (or) in the number of goods.

2. When determining the customs value of imported goods in accordance with this article, if necessary, an adjustment shall be made to the value of transaction with homogenous goods in order to account for a significant difference in the expenses in relation to the being valued and homogeneous goods, specified in subparagraphs 4), 5) and 6) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code, conditioned by differences in the distances to which they are transported (moved), and by the types of transport, transporting (moving) the goods.

1) remuneration to the intermediary (agent), usually paid or payable, or a price premium, usually made for profit and general expenses coverage (commercial and administrative

3. In the event that neither the being valued goods nor the identical to the being valued goods or homogeneous to the being valued goods are sold in the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union in the same or corresponding period of time in which the being valued goods are imported into the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, the customs value of such goods shall be determined on the basis of the price of a unit of the goods, at which respectively the being valued or identical, or homogenous goods are sold in the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union in the amount sufficient to establish the price per unit of such goods in the same state in which they were imported, on the earliest date in relation to the date of importation of goods into the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, but not later than ninety calendar days after this date.

4. In the event that neither the being valued goods nor the identical to the being valued goods or homogeneous to the being valued goods are sold in the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union in the same state in which they were imported into the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, upon an application of the declarant, the customs value of the being valued goods shall be determined on the basis of the price of a unit of such goods, according to which their largest aggregate amount is sold after processing (refining) to the persons who are not the interrelated persons to the persons from whom they purchase these goods on the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, subject to the deduction of the value added as a result of processing (refining) and the amounts specified in paragraph 2 of this article.

The deduction of the value added as a result of processing (refining) shall be made on the basis of reliable, quantifiable and documented information related to the cost of processing (refining).

5. The provisions of paragraph 4 of this article shall not apply to determine the customs value of imported goods in the following cases:

1) as a result of further processing (refining), the goods being valued lose their individual characteristics, except in cases where, despite the loss of individual characteristics by the goods, the value added as a result of processing (refining) can be determined accurately;

2) the goods being valued shall not lose their individual characteristics, but constitute such a small part in the goods sold in the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union that the value of the goods being valued does not have a significant effect on the value of the goods sold.

The possibility of applying paragraph 4 of this article shall be determined in each individual case, depending on the specific circumstances.

6. When considering the sales of goods that are being valued or are identical or homogeneous with the goods being valued on the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, the sales to the person who, in connection with production and delivery for export to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, of the goods being valued, directly or indirectly, at a reduced price, shall provide the goods and services for the use, specified in subparagraph 2) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code.

7. For the purposes of this article, the amount of profit and total costs (commercial and management costs), which may be both direct and indirect costs for the sale of goods, shall be considered as a premium to the price of the product covering these costs, as well as ensuring profit due to the sale of goods of the same class or type.

The amount of profit and general expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) shall be taken into account in general and shall be determined on the basis of the information held by the declarant if the information provided by him is comparable to information when the goods of the same class or type are sold in the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union. In the event that this information does not correspond to information held by the customs authority on the usual amount of profit and general expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) in the sales of goods of the same class or type, the customs authority can determine the amount of profit and total expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) on the basis of the information held by it.

8. For the purposes of this article, information shall be used about the sales of goods of the same class or type imported from the same country as the goods being valued, as well as goods from other countries. The question of whether the goods being valued and the goods with which they are being compared are of the same class or type shall be decided separately in each particular case, taking into account the relevant circumstances. At that, the sales of the possibly narrower group or a number of goods of the same class or type, imported to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, shall be considered, including those being valued, in respect of which the information can be provided.

9. In the event that the customs authority determines the customs value of imported goods in accordance with this article on the basis of information held by it, it shall inform the declarant in electronic or written form about the sources of such information, as well as the calculations made on their basis.

Article 71. Method of addition (method 5)

1. When determining the customs value of imported goods in accordance with this article, the estimated value of goods shall be taken as the basis, which is determined by adding:

1) the cost of manufacturing or purchasing materials and production costs, as well as other operations related to production of the goods being valued;

2) the amount of profit and total expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) equivalent to the amount that is usually taken into account when selling goods of the same class or type as the goods being valued in the country in which the goods were sold for export to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic union;

3) the expenses, indicated in subparagraphs 4), 5) and 6) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code.

2. Expenses specified in subparagraph 1) of paragraph 1 of this article shall be determined on the basis of information on production of the goods being valued that are submitted by or on behalf of the manufacturer and confirmed by the manufacturer's commercial documents, provided that such documents are prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used in the country where the goods are manufactured.

3. Expenses specified in subparagraph 1) of paragraph 1 of this article shall include the expenses indicated in paragraphs three and four of subparagraph 1) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code and distributed in accordance with subparagraph 1) of paragraph 5 of Article 67 of this Code, the cost of goods and services specified in subparagraph 2) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code, directly or indirectly provided by the buyer for use in connection with production of imported goods. The cost of goods and services indicated in paragraph five of subparagraph 2) of part one of paragraph 1 of Article 67 of this Code, produced (rendered) in the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, shall be included only to the extent that these goods and services were paid for by the producer. At that, the costs shall not be re-counted when determining the estimated cost.

Direct and indirect costs for production and sale of imported goods for export to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, which are not specified in subparagraph 1) of paragraph 1 of this article, shall be included as general expenses (commercial and administrative expenses).

4. The amount of profit and total expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) shall be taken into account in general and shall be determined on the basis of information provided by or on behalf of the manufacturer. In the event that this information does not correspond to information, held by the state revenue body, on the usual amount of profit and general expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) in the sale of goods of the same class or type for export to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, the customs authority may determine the amount of profit and general expenses (commercial and administrative expenses) on the basis of the information, held by it.

5. For the purposes of this article, information on the sales of goods of the same class or type, produced in the same state as the goods being valued, shall be used. The question of whether the goods being valued and the goods with which they are being compared are of the same class or type shall be decided separately in each particular case, taking into account the relevant circumstances. At that, the sales of a possibly narrower group or a number of goods of the same class or type are considered for exportation to the customs territory of the Eurasian Economic Union, in relation of which the information can be provided.

6. Customs authorities shall not be entitled to require a foreign person to submit documents and information for determining the estimated value of goods, unless otherwise established by the customs legislation of the Eurasian Economic Union, international treaties of the Eurasian Economic Union with a third party or international treaties of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Documents and information, submitted by a foreign producer of goods or on his behalf for determining the estimated value of goods, can be verified in the country of the producer of goods by the authorized bodies of the Republic of Kazakhstan with the consent of the foreign producer of goods, and also provided that the authorized body of the country of the producer of goods is notified in advance and there are no objections to such verification. Verification of documents and information submitted by or on behalf of a foreign producer of goods shall be carried out by the authorized bodies of the Republic of Kazakhstan in accordance with international treaties to which the Republic of Kazakhstan is a party.
